WELCOME

Неделя Русского Искусства

As Editor of Russian Art & Culture, I am pleased to present London's latest edition of the Russian Art Week guide.

Russian Art Week is a bi-annual event which takes place in June and November. The major auction houses of Bonhams, Christie's, MacDougall's and Sotheby's all join together to present a series of Russian sales in London. Several Russian exhibitions and related cultural events also take place.

We hope you enjoy our guide to this major event. We aim to provide you with comprehensive listings of all sales, exhibitions and a directory of Russian auction houses, galleries, dealers and specialist institutions.

Following the success of last year's publication we have also decided to publish the guide partly in Russian. We hope you find this helpful.

I would like to thank everyone involved for all of their support and all of our sponsors. Enjoy!

Theodora Clarke

WALERA MARTYNCHIK

Walera Martynchik is, without doubt, the heir of the highest tradition of Russian Avant-Garde and Abstract Art. His paintings, a seemingly chaotic assemblage of objects and geometric shapes, obey a rigorous order both in terms of composition and use of colour. Each work can be perceived as a symphony, a painted piece of music. Concern with compositional precision and rhythm is derived by early abstract artists such as Kupka, Delaunay, Klee, and Kandinsky. Chromatic choices are underpinned by a profound understanding of the theory of colours.

The cities of Moscow and St. Petersburg are home to some of the world's greatest works of art, and these tours provide a unique introduction to just some of the masterpieces to be found here. Focussing on the Russian avant-garde and contemporary art in particular, we visit leading galleries such as the State Tretyakov in Moscow and the State Hermitage in St. Petersburg to view works rarely exhibited in the west, by artists such as Kandinsky, Malevich, Chagall, Goncharova and Rodchenko. We also enjoy a brief introduction to Russian art of today. There are two departures planned:

Moscow
6th - 9th December 2013

Moscow & St. Petersburg
21st - 27th March 2014
